

Nikki Young's entertainment career spans such hit stage shows as The Love List, Romantic Fools, and Rumors, as well as regular guest appearances on Great Day SA, San Antonio Living, Fox News First, and Jack Riccardi's Gang of Four.

Some of her feature film work includes roles in VOSOT: Voice Over/Sound on Tape, Wolf (which received a standing ovation during its premiere at SXSW in 2012), and the superhero comedy Now Hiring. Nikki also garnered critical acclaim for her work in the award-winning short film Four Minutes Till the End, which enjoyed festival screenings all over Texas and was an official selection of the Cannes Film Festival.

As a host, Nikki has emceed numerous shows and events. Onstage and online - from forums to fundraisers, from readings to retreats, from workshops to the Women's Final Four - Nikki has entertained audiences across Texas, and even as far away as Poland.

Nikki received her BFA in Theatre from Southwest Texas State University, and has taught acting to hundreds of students of all ages through camps, churches, film sets, and private sessions. As founder of the "Arty Party," she has supported Wounded Warriors and their families at the YMCA. And with her literary lapdog, Readmore Books, she has promoted literacy to children across San Antonio as "Miss Nikki, The Literature Lady."

Nikki has nearly 20 years of experience as a performer, producer (through her company PrimaDonna Productions, Inc.), and educator. Today, she has brought that experience together as one of San Antonio's foremost edutainers.

She resides in San Antonio, where she works as the Entertainment Director at the world's first fully accessible and inclusive theme park, Morgan's Wonderland, and as Creative Arts Teacher at The Academy at Morgan's Wonderland, a school for students with special needs.
